2. Alicia Quarles has her hands full these days—both of them, at all hours of the day and night.

"Having a baby unexpectedly at 41 is one thing; having twins is a whole other beast," says the global entertainment editor.

Actually, until her pregnancy Quarles had been living at breakneck speed. It went so until last year. "I was exhausted," she says. "I'd been working three jobs, doing my charity and going nonstop. I was afraid my mental health was getting worse." In early August she took herself to the hospital, to see if she was OK. Doctors ran multiple tests and told her that she had had an anxiety attack, and she was 11 weeks pregnant.

"She was stressed and decompensated (代谢失调的), so everything just came to more than she could handle at the time," explains doctor Miriam Barnes, who began treating her. "Fortunately, she tried to be positive and seek help from me immediately. I told her not to have any medication at that stage and advised her to take natural therapy (疗法)." .

A week later Quarles learned that she was having twins. But instead of that news adding to her anxiety, "a total peace came over me, and it felt like it all made sense," she says. Quarles, who did not take any medication, returned home to her loved ones in North Carolina, where she gave birth to Hudson and Harlow on Feb. 16. "There's nothing like family," she says. "I found out through working on myself in natural therapy that there were a lot of things I hadn't dealt with. I just kept going."

These days Quarles uses social media to document her joyful motherhood journey. Quarles has put her anxiety behind but remains in therapy—and wants to encourage others who feel stressed to get help. "At first I felt guilty and embarrassed," she admits. "I don't anymore. My message is you can fall down. But you can stand up, by yourself or with the help of others. It's not a shame, and it's a blessing."

(1) Which of the following best explains "breakneck" underlined in paragraph 2?

A. Safe and slow.

B. Fast and dangerous.

C. Exciting and terrifying.

D. Gentle and comfortable.

(2) Why did Quarles return to North Carolina?

A. To give birth and make some friends.

B. To have a break and treat her anxiety.

C. To take natural therapy and stay alone.

D. To look after her family and visit a doctor.

(3) What does Quarles suggest people under pressure do?

A. Keep standing up.

B. Fall down if needed.

C. Face whatever comes.

D. Obtain assistance when necessary.

(4) What is a suitable title for the text?

A. An Anxious 41-year-old Mother

B. A Mother's Astonishing Experience

C. An Interesting Taste of Motherhood

D. A Mother Fighting Her Mental Breakdown

【答案】 (1) B

【解析】 (1) 【导语】本文是一篇记叙文。文章讲述了41岁的艾丽西亚·夸尔斯由于压力太大，患上焦虑症，后来得知自己怀了双胞胎，于是夸尔斯开始用社交媒体记录她快乐的母亲之旅。夸尔斯已经把焦虑抛在脑后，但仍在接受治疗，她想鼓励其他感到压力的人去寻求帮助。

【小题1】词句猜测题。根据第一段 "Alicia Quarles has her hands full these days—both of them, at all hours of the day and night.(这些天艾丽西亚·夸尔斯忙得不可开交——无论是白天还是晚上)" 及划线词下文 "“I was exhausted, " she says. "I'd been working three jobs, doing my charity and going nonstop. I was afraid my mental health was getting worse." ("我筋疲力尽, " 她说。 "我一直在做三份工作, 做慈善, 不停地工作。我担心我的心理健康状况会越来越差。")"可知, 夸尔斯工作繁忙, 生活速度非常快, 以至于筋疲力尽。由此推知, 划线词breakneck与Fast and dangerous (快速危险) 意思接近。故选B。

(2) 【小题2】推理判断题。根据第五段中的 "Quarles, who did not take any medication, returned home to her loved ones in North Carolina, where she gave birth to Hudson and Harlow on Feb. 16. "There's nothing like family, " she says. "I found out through working on myself in natural therapy that there were a lot of things I hadn't dealt with. I just kept going." (2月16日, 她回到她在北卡罗来纳州的亲人身边, 生下了哈德森和哈洛。 "没有什么比家人更好的了, " 她说。我发现, 通过自然疗法对自己进行治疗, 有很多事情我没有处理过。我只是继续前进。)"可推知, 夸尔斯回到北卡罗来纳休息一下, 治疗她的焦虑。故选B。

- (3) 【小题3】细节理解题。根据最后一段中的 "Quarles has put her anxiety behind but remains in therapy—and wants to encourage others who feel stressed to get help. (夸尔斯已经把焦虑抛在脑后, 但仍在接受治疗, 她想鼓励其他感到压力的人去寻求帮助)" 可知, 夸尔斯建议有压力的人在必要时寻求帮助。故选D。
- (4) 【小题4】主旨大意题。根据第三段中的 "Doctors ran multiple tests and told her that she had had an anxiety attack, and she was 11 weeks pregnant.(医生给她做了多次检查, 告诉她这是焦虑症发作, 而且她已经怀孕11周了)" 和第五段中的 "Quarles, who did not take any medication, returned home to her loved ones in North Carolina, where she gave birth to Hudson and Harlow on Feb. 16. "There's nothing like family," she says. "I found out through working on myself in natural therapy that there were a lot of things I hadn't dealt with. I just kept going." (2月16日, 她回到她在北卡罗来纳州的亲人身边, 生下了哈德森和哈洛。"没有什么比家人更好的了," 她说。我发现, 通过自然疗法对自己进行治疗, 有很多事情我没有处理过。我只是继续前进。)" 及最后一段中的 "Quarles has put her anxiety behind but remains in therapy—and wants to encourage others who feel stressed to get help. (夸尔斯已经把焦虑抛在脑后, 但仍在接受治疗, 她想鼓励其他感到压力的人去寻求帮助)" 可知, 文章讲述了41岁的艾丽西亚·夸尔斯由于压力太大, 患上焦虑症, 后来得知自己怀了双胞胎, 于是夸尔斯开始用社交媒体记录她快乐的母亲之旅, 夸尔斯已经把焦虑抛在脑后, 并想鼓励其他感到压力的人去寻求帮助。由此可知, D. A Mother Fighting Her Mental Breakdown (一位与精神崩溃作斗争的母亲) 适合作本文最佳标题。故选D。

3. Who cares if people think wrongly that the Internet has had more important influences than the washing machine?

Why does it matter that people are more impressed by the most recent changes?

It would not matter if these misjudgments were just a matter of people's opinions. However, they have real impacts, as they result in misguided use of scarce resources.

The fascination with the ICT(Information and Communication Technology)revolution, represented by the Internet, has made some rich countries wrongly conclude that making things is so "yesterday" that they should try to live on ideas. This belief in "post-industrial society" has led those countries to neglect their manufacturing sector (制造业) with negative consequences for their economies.

Even more worryingly, the fascination with the Internet by people in rich countries has moved the international community to worry about the "digital divide" between the rich countries and the poor countries. This has led companies and individuals to donate money to developing countries to buy computer equipment and Internet facilities. The question, however, is whether this is what the developing countries need the most. Perhaps giving money for those less fashionable things such as digging wells, extending electricity networks and making more affordable washing machines would have improved people's lives more than giving every child a laptop computer or setting up Internet centres in rural villages. I am not saying that those things are necessarily more important, but many donators have rushed into fancy programmes without carefully assessing the relative long-term costs and benefits of alternative uses of their money.

In yet another example, a fascination with the new has led people to believe that the recent changes in the technologies of communications and transportation are so revolutionary that now we live in a "borderless world". As a result, in the last twenty years or so, many people have come to believe that whatever change is happening today is the result of great technological progress, going against which will be like trying to turn the clock back. Believing in such a world, many governments have put an end to some of the very necessary regulations on cross-border flows of capital, labour and goods, with poor results.

Understanding technological trends is very important for correctly designing economic policies, both at the national and the international levels, and for making the right career choices at the individual level. However, our fascination with the latest, and our under valuation of what has already become common, can, and has, led us in all sorts of wrong directions.

- (1) Misjudgments on the influences of new technology can lead to _____.
A. a lack of confidence in technology
B. a slow progress in technology
C. a conflict of public opinions
D. a waste of limited resources
- (2) The example in Paragraph 4 suggests that donators should _____.
A. take people's essential needs into account
B. make their programmes attractive to people
C. ensure that each child gets financial support
D. provide more affordable internet facilities
- (3) What has led many governments to remove necessary regulations?
A. Neglecting the impacts of technological advances.
B. Believing that the world has become borderless.
C. Ignoring the power of economic development.
D. Over-emphasizing the role of international communication.
- (4) What can we learn from the passage?
A. People should be encouraged to make more donations.
B. Traditional technology still has a place nowadays.
C. Making right career choices is crucial to personal success.
D. Economic policies should follow technological trends.

【答案】 (1) D

(2) A

(3) B

(4) B

【解析】(1) 细节理解题。根据第二段However, they have real impacts, as they result in misguided use of scarce resources. 可知, 对信息技术的错误判断会导致有限资源的错误使用, 也就是资源的浪费, 故选D。

(2) 推理判断题。根据第四段Perhaps giving money for those less fashionable things such as digging wells, extending electricity networks and making more affordable washing machines would have improved people's lives more than giving every child a laptop computer or setting up Internet centres in rural villages, I am not saying that those things are necessarily more important, but many donators have rushed into fancy programmes without carefully assessing the relative long-term costs and benefits of alternative uses of their money. 可知, 与其给那些贫困地区孩子笔记本电脑或者建网络中心, 还不如给钱打井, 铺电网或者生产他们买得起的洗衣机, 这些东西更能改善他们的生活。作者不是说这些东西一定更重要, 但是很多捐赠者没有仔细考虑捐赠的东西的长期成本, 因此作者建议捐赠者要考虑接受捐赠的人的实际情况, 而不是一味地追求信息化, 故选A。

(3) 推理判断题。根据第五段In yet another example, a fascination with the new has led people to believe that the recent changes in the technologies of communications and transportation are so revolutionary that now we live in a "borderless world". 以及Believing in such a world, many governments have put an end to some of the very necessary regulations on cross-border flows of capital, labour and goods, with poor results. 可知, 对新东西的迷恋让人们认为如今通讯技术和交通的变革让我们生活在一个无国界的世界。正是认为我们生活在这样一个世界, 很多政府取消了关于跨国界的资本、劳动力以及商品流动的法律法规, 故选B。

(4) 推理判断题。根据第三段The fascination with the ICT(Information and Communication Technology)revolution, represented by the Internet, has made some rich countries wrongly conclude that making things is so "yesterday" that they should try to live on ideas. This belief in "post-industrial society" has led those countries to neglect their manufacturing sector (制造业) with negative consequences for their economies. 可知, 对互联网呈现的通讯技术变革的迷恋让很多富裕国家做出一个错误的结论, 制造产品已经过时了, 他们应该靠创意生活, 因而忽略了制造业, 从而对经济造成不利影响, 故可知, 传统的技术依然有它的地位, 不能被新兴的信息技术取代, 故选B。

4. A novel design approach to gardening has been gaining in popularity worldwide. Referred to as matrix planting, this approach aims for nature to do a lot more of the heavy lifting in the garden, and even some of the designing. Eschewing fertilizers (化肥) and power tools, it's based on an elegantly simple principle: to garden more like nature does.

The concept was born when German city planners sought to plant large areas of parkland after World War II in a reproducible way that would need minimal maintenance. Planners created planting mixes that could be used modularly (模块化). In a matrix garden, plants with similar cultural needs are grouped so that they will grow together above and below ground, forming a cooperative ecosystem that conserves water and discourages weeds.

Dutch plantsman and designer Piet Oudolf's gardens popularized this style, adding artistic flavors to the planting mixes while playing with color and form, including four-season interest and serving the needs of wildlife. Beautiful year-round, they invite you to enjoy the smallest detail, from the sound of grasses in the gentle wind to the sculpture of odd-looking seed heads.

It takes a lot of thought to look this natural. While matrix gardens appear wild, they are carefully planned, with cultural needs the first consideration. Led by the concept of "right plant, right place, " they match plants that enjoy the same soil, sun and weather conditions, and arrange them according to their patterns of growth.

The benefits are substantial for both gardener and planet. With human inputs dramatically reduced, the garden's ecology can develop well. Established matrix gardens should not need the life support we give most gardens: fertilizer, dividing, regular watering. Compared to traditional garden plots, they increase carbon absorption, reduce stormwater runoff and boost habitat and biodiversity significantly.

(1) What does the underlined word "Eschewing" in the first paragraph mean?

- A. Running out of.
- B. Keeping away from.
- C. Putting up with.
- D. Taking advantage of.

(2) Why was the idea of matrix planting introduced?

- A. To control weeds in large gardens.
- B. To bring in foreign species of plants.
- C. To conserve soil and water resources.
- D. To develop low-maintenance parkland.

(3) Which of the following best describes Piet Oudolf's gardens?

- A. Traditional.
- B. Odd-looking.
- C. Tasteful.
- D. Well-protected.

(4) Which of the following can be a suitable title for the text?

- A. The future of gardening is WILD.
- B. Nature treats all lives as EQUALS.
- C. Matrix gardens need more CARE.
- D. Old garden plots work WONDERS.

5. Green Roofs: Breathing Life into Concrete Jungles

Imagine concrete jungles turning into living landscapes. Across global cities, rooftops are being transformed into gardens, creating what we call green roofs. 1 Originally popularized in Germany in the 1960s, this innovative approach is now a worldwide nature-based solution to urban environmental crises, demonstrating how cities can harmonize with ecosystems.

Natural Cooling Systems

The most immediate benefit lies in cooling overheated cities. 2 The soil and plants act as natural blockers, reducing surface temperatures by up to 40°C in summer. This significantly decreases the "urban heat island" effect where cities become markedly warmer than surrounding rural areas. Consequently, buildings require less air conditioning. Such temperature regulation also improves air quality by reducing ozone formation.

Stormwater Managers

Another critical function involves managing stormwater. During heavy rainfalls, traditional roofs cause rapid runoff, often resulting in drainage systems overflowing. Green roofs work like sponges, absorbing about 70% of rainfall. And through their layered structure of soil, drainage mats, and plants, green roofs also filter heavy metals and pollutants from rainwater. 3

Biodiversity Sanctuaries (保护区)

These raised gardens also create vital habitats for birds, insects, and pollinators (传粉者) in areas where natural spaces are rare. Even simple green roofs with native plants support dozens of insect species. 4 . Urban ecologists confirm that such mini-ecosystems strengthen city recovery ability by maintaining pollination networks and natural pest control. In cities like London and Chicago, rare bird species have been observed nesting on high-rise green roofs.

5 From lowering energy bills to creating wildlife corridors and reducing flood risks, green roofs demonstrate how mixing architecture with ecology can build healthier, more sustainable cities for our future. As climate change worsens, these sky-high gardens symbolize humanity's potential to coexist creatively with nature.

- A. These habitats play a key role in urban ecology
- B. Thus, they prevent water pollution effectively
- C. Green roofs offer multiple environmental benefits
- D. Research claims that they remove heat islands entirely
- E. This is achieved by adding plants and soil on rooftops
- F. Such designs also lower construction costs significantly
- G. This concept represents a shift from fighting nature to working with it

【答案】

Should We Embrace AI to Assist Our Learning?

Last week, our class held a heated debate on whether we should embrace AI to assist our learning. The debate was divided into two sides: the affirmative team argued that AI can provide personalized learning resources and improve efficiency, while the negative team warned that over-reliance on AI might weaken critical thinking and academic integrity.

The debate process was intense and engaging. The affirmative side highlighted how AI tools like smart tutors can adapt to individual needs, offering instant feedback and saving time. In contrast, the negative side emphasized the risks of plagiarism and the potential loss of problem-solving skills. Both sides presented compelling arguments, supported by examples and data. The audience was fully absorbed, and the Q&A session after the debate sparked even more discussion. Many classmates commented that the debate made them reflect on how to balance technology and traditional learning.

In my opinion, AI is a double-edged sword. We should embrace it as a helpful assistant, but not let it replace our own thinking. For instance, we can use AI to clarify doubts or explore topics, but we must ensure we understand the knowledge deeply rather than just copying answers. By using AI responsibly, we can enhance our learning without compromising our academic growth.

19. As the afternoon sun bathed the local beach with its warm, golden rays, four-year-old William sat on the beach with a mix of expectation and confusion. His dad, Steven, sat by his side. They were waiting for William's friends to arrive and celebrate his long-awaited birthday party. William's wide eyes, filled with hope and happiness, stared at the shoreline, looking for familiar faces.

He kept asking his dad where everyone was, and Steven just told him "they're coming soon, " trying to ease his son's growing impatience. But the longer they waited, the more hopeless William became. He was extremely disappointed when the two invited families called and said they couldn't make it to the celebration because of unexpected situations.

Steven watched his son, who had been eagerly expecting his special day for what seemed like ages. This year, William had been more aware than ever of his upcoming birthday, asking throughout the month when his birthday was, eagerly expecting a good time.

Feeling a sense of guilt for his son's disappointment, Steven decided to turn to social media for help. He posted a lovely picture of him and William on the beach. Their faces were filled with a mix of hope and disappointment. The sincere words with the picture read, "William would love some friends to play with on the beach. To celebrate his fourth birthday, he has Hot Wheels, sand toys, dinosaurs, and we have some snacks and drinks. Any and all welcome. "

William's wish for companionship produced a strong response from the local people. They flooded the post with messages of support, birthday wishes, and offers to join the celebration. They were determined to make William's day special.

"Going there. See you soon, " one warm-hearted local commented on the post, promising to bring her family along. The message aroused the same feeling from many others, who were quick to follow suit.

Soon, the beach was filled with scenes of joy.

After hours of laughter and games, the sun began to set.

【答案】 Soon, the beach was filled with scenes of joy. One by one, cars pulled up, and families stepped out, waving at Steven and William. William, who had been staring at the empty shoreline, looked up in disbelief as he saw a crowd gathering. His eyes widened, sparkling with tears of happiness. Steven knelt beside him, whispering, "They're here, son. Everyone is here to celebrate with you." The invited friends' absence was quickly forgotten as new playmates rushed over, bringing toys and balloons. The beach transformed into a lively party ground, with children chasing each other, building sandcastles, and splashing in the shallow waves. William ran around, laughing louder than ever, his disappointment replaced by pure delight.

After hours of laughter and games, the sun began to set. The sky turned orange and pink, casting a warm glow over the gathering. Steven brought out a big birthday cake, adorned with four candles. Everyone gathered around, singing "Happy Birthday" as William made a wish and blew out the candles. He hugged his dad tightly, then turned to the crowd, shyly saying, "Thank you!" The warm-hearted locals cheered, promising to make this the start of an annual tradition. As the stars emerged, William knew this was the best birthday he had ever had, surrounded by love and kindness from his new friends.
